ABOUT

Felix took a leap into the world of theater technology in high school and hasn't looked back since. They began their path into the professional world working with local designers and technicians in Vermont, and took to Emerson College in Boston, MA to pursue an education in theater design.

Within their work, Felix loves working within the world of youth theater. They find creating meaningful, challenging, and inspiring art for children extremely rewarding. Additionally, they aim to lift the voices of those who do not normally get a voice within society within their work by pulling from their own stories, and listening to the experiences of others.
